

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

5.1 Conclusion

From the research that has been done, the researcher concludes that in the Great Expectations novel there are moral values carried out in the novel such as the actions taken by Mrs. Joe to Pip which since childhood Pip was taught harshly so that it made a change in Pip's attitude as an adult. Moral values can also be seen from the cunning and upbringing of Miss Havisham who deliberately made Estella's personality a woman who broke every man's heart to avenge Miss Havisham's disappointment.

A person's moral values do not always have negative things, according to Nurgiyantoro, (2005) moral values can be in the form of good or bad things that arise within themselves and can be detrimental or even beneficial for those around them. Positive moral values are also reflected by Joe's character, who becomes Pip's best friend and when Pip falls ill, he stays humble and takes care of Pip. Etc., it can be concluded that moral values can be positive and negative.

5.2 Suggestions

After conducting research and analysis of the novel, especially on the moral values in the novel, the writer got some valuable lessons from the characters in the novel such as Joe and Miss. Havisham. Some suggestions that researchers can convey to readers and parents First, advice to parents is to be able to give a positive picture of children by teaching which things are bad and good things that can be applied in everyday life.

The second suggestion for the reader, the researcher hopes that the reader can understand the essence of this research and can make the reader more interested in getting to know literature and everything that mingles with literature because reading a lot of each literary work will increase knowledge, especially in literary studies. The researcher hopes that this research can be used as a supporting material for further research with a new version.
