In this chapter, the researcher presents the conclusion about this research. This chapter will provide general conclusions about the research findings by reviewing the research questions that mention in the chapter I. After doing the analysis about the love and belonging needs of the main character on Jane Eyre novel by Charlotte Bronte, the researcher finds three kinds of love and belonging needs reflected in the novel related to Jane Eyre.

The first, love and belonging needs of Jane Eyre related to her family are unsatisfied. According to the novel, Jane Eyre's family consist of her parents, uncle Reeds and aunt Reeds, and her three cousins; Eliza, John and Georgiana. After do the analysis the researcher does not found love and belonging of Jane Eyre related to the entire family member. Jane is an orphan girl. Her uncle had taken her when a parentless infant. She was lived under custody of her own uncle Mr. Reed. After the death of her uncle the situation is so much different for what is expected by Jane. Mrs. Reeds is not like what a mother's loves is in true sense and get the bullying from Eliza, John and Georgiana.

The second is love and belonging needs of Jane Eyre related to her friends is satisfied with befriends of Helen Burns and Mary Ann Wilson. Both two friends of Jane, the best one is Helen Burns. They giving and receiving affection each others. They kept the friendship until the death of Helen. It is hard to find a true friend; Jane found it and kept it till the last moment

The third is love and belonging needs of Jane Eyre related to her intimacy is satisfied with her loved ones Mr. Rochester. Jane loves Mr. Rochester and this love identified from her desire to sacrifice for loved ones. The need to belong is satisfied because Mr. Rochester married her. They were united in holy marriage and happy ending after through the major problem.
