

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

5.1 Conclusion

This drama showed how the condition of women in a patriarchal environment. Patriarchal society believed that the position of men, especially fathers in a family, has power over his family members. This of course had an impact on women's rights which were limited by this form of power. Moreover, this then made the women hegemony with patriarchal culture so that women unwittingly followed and considered it to be fairness.

Juliet, in this drama became a victim of the dominance of a father who wanted her to marry the man of his choice. Not only in the house, she also became an object contested by men including Paris and Romeo. It was her meeting with Romeo that made her who initially tried to follow the wishes of her parents and then had reasons to make her own choices. Unconsciously, she had become a victim of the patriarchal forms of domination that the people adhered to at the time. The condition of Verona's people at that time made Juliet an object to be contested and made as betting material between Romeo and Benvolio who wanted to prove Verona's most beautiful woman. Beside that, not only Juliet but some women who lived in Verona such as Rosaline and female maids become an object of social tradition.

With the condition of the society who adhere to the patriarchal culture, Juliet tries to break free from her father's power. She tried some ways to start from stalling for her marriage with Paris in a reasonable way. Juliet gave reason with not to marry to Paris because she was too young. Then, Juliet asked for help to Friar Lawrence to marry secretly with Romeo, to drink the remedy given by Friar Lawrence which led to the death of Romeo and Juliet. Juliet also had more initiative than Romeo which made her look more dominant than Romeo by offering to leave her family name behind. According to her, it was their surname that prevented the two from uniting because they looked at each other as enemies. Capulet and Montague were family names that were mutually hostile, so leaving a family name was one of the struggle that Juliet believes to succeed.

5.2 Suggestion

Researcher as woman expects equality of position between women and men. There will be no second form of women, which means women are made into objects by men. Every human being has their own rights and desires, respecting each other about opinions or rights is a matter that is highly recommended. There is no more oppression especially women.

Women can also choose their rights and do what they want. Just as a woman can make decisions, she can also become a worker, a leader and an entrepreneur. However, it does not mean that women are able to do all forms of the field, women also have to respect men especially when they have become a wife. Then women must be proper and submit to their husbands in terms of goodness. It can be concluded that the researcher hope to human being respecting for one another specifically a man. For woman, is expected to know the things that must be equal.
