

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

5.1 Conclusion

Conversational implicature happened when the speaker does not make sufficient contributions by making statements that were not related to the question, but indirectly answering questions is called as conversational implicature. Conversational implicature happened in the movie when the speakers flouting or break the conversation. To understand what the speaker means, the hearer has to know the context. If the hearer understands the context in which the speaker is concerned, there will be no misunderstanding. The problems in this research were to understand which maxims are flouted and the types of the conversational implicature.

From the data analysis, the researcher found several flouting maxim which occur conversational implicature. The most maxims which is flouts is maxim of relevance. Maxim of relevance happens when the speaker and the listener have to be relevant. So, when they fail to convey the answer or response requested by a speech partner, it means that they flout the maxim. The other data were classified to the flouting maxim of quantity and flouting maxim of manner. Then, for the types of conversational implicature, the most common used is generalized conversational implicature. If the utterance there is no relation between the contexts for generating implicature is classified as generalized conversational implicature. To identify generalized conversational implicature could be using scalar implicature. This term is used to express quantity or scale of value, such as all, most, some, few, always, often, and sometimes. The other data in the second formulation were categorized as particularized conversational implicature.

5.2 Suggestion

The researcher gives suggestions for the following part. For linguistics students, it is important to give advance study on the use of conversational implicature in certain community, especially English community. It is because English language broadly used in all parts of the world and become an international language so, the understanding of meaning in English language is needed, especially in an application of conversational implicature.
