

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

5.1 Conclusion

In good communication, a speaker and listener must comply with the cooperative principle. Grice expressed four maxims that must be obeyed by speakers, namely the maxim of quantity, maxim of quality, maxim of relation and maxim of manner. In communication, if the speaker followed the cooperative principle, the communication becomes clearer and easier to understand. Unfortunately, the cooperative principle is not always adhered to by the users of the language. In everyday life, people usually always communicate, but the communication failed to comply with the maxims. Researchers used movie to analyze flouting maxim. "Bad boys for life" is a comedy film that was very popular among teenagers. Comedy films are a representation of today's youth. The film shows that flouting maxims in communication often occur because of jokes and lies.

From the analysis that had been done, the writer was found several conversations that contain flouting maxims, namely flouting of the quantity maxim, flouting of the quality maxim, flouting of the relationship maxim, flouting of the manner maxim. When the flouting maxim occurs, there was a hidden meaning, namely the implied meaning. And it was found that the conversation in the film "Bad boys for life" contains several implicature, such as convincing listeners, avoiding conflict and wanting attention.

5.2 Recommendations

In communication, following to the cooperative principle is very important. The cooperative principle is a form of conversation between speakers and listeners who understand each other. To be successful in conversation in everyday life it is important to adhere to and understand cooperative principles. The purpose of this researcher is to explain to the reader so that they can understand and apply it in the article or thesis that will be made, that it is important to follow cooperative principles that can be applied in everyday life. Flouting maxim usually occurs when someone conveys an implied meaning so that the listener is confused about what the speaker is saying. Therefore, in this research, I analyze the type and reason so that readers can easily understand what is flouting.

Therefore, for students who care about studying English, the writer expects the reader to be able to understand information in pragmatic terms, namely flouting maxim. Readers are expected to be able to analyze flouting maxims in everyday life in order to gain additional knowledge.